Mr. Knight was in a state of great excitement.

Policeman Charles A. Schultz said he heard an explosion and saw Knight and the negroes scampering out into the street, pursued by smoke and flames. The policeman turned in an alarm, which was supplemented by another when the first battalion arrived.

It looked at first as though there would be a big fire. All the floors were scorched, but the blaze was drowned out before the whole stock of oil and grease could be ignited.

In the early part of the fire some skipgrease could be ignited.

In the early part of the fire some skippers whose vessels berthed in the adjoining docks thought it best to move out of the way.

The New York Lubricating Company consists of Frank Cazenove Jones, President; R. J. Curtis, Vice-President, and J. W. Knight, Secretary and Treasurer. The stock was worth about $25,000. Five thousand dollars will repair the building, which is leased from E. A. Crulkshank. All loss is covered by insurance.

CAUGHT FIRE IN BED.

Mrs. Karvin Upset a Lamp While Intoxicated, and May Die.

Alice Karvin, forty-five years old, Alice Karvin, forty-five years old, a married woman, living in a room on the first floor of the three-story building, 10 Varick street, was badly burned just before midnight.

She went to bed intoxicated, and upset an oil lamp. Her night attire caught fire, and her screams alarmed the other tenants. Some of them managed to smother the flames. She was removed to St. Vincent's Hospital, where it is said she may die.
